

QUOTE SANDWICH PRACTICE

Write your claim.

Beauty is good, parents are bad.

Explain what you mean.

Many little girls are being made to dress up in ridiculous cloths and strut their stuff in front of everybody against their will.

Illustrate, Authorize, or Counter---remember to give full name and use quotation marks if you don't paraphrase.

For example, Australian law maker Anna Burke tells the Sydney Daily Telegraph, "Clearly, pageants risk the exploitation or potential exploitation of very young children who really don't have the capacity to express their own views."

Explain your quote or your paraphrase in a couple sentences. (Ask yourself "how" or "why" this supports your claim.)

This means that a lot of kids do not have a say in what they do. They just have to do what their parents tell them to do and accept it.

Re-write everything above into a well-written paragraph. It is okay to add more explanations and details than you put previously.

Beauty is good, parents are bad. Many little girls are being made to dress up in ridiculous cloths and strut their stuff in front of everybody against their will. For example, Australian law maker Anna Burke tells the Sydney Daily Telegraph, "Clearly, pageants risk the exploitation or potential exploitation of very young children who really don't have the capacity to express their own views." This means that a lot of kids do not have a say in what they do. They just have to do what their parents tell them to do and accept it. That's why parent are degrading and ridiculous.