Because of the research on drama says that it's not important doesn't mean it's not important. Gregory Bossler says in the passage "it all starts in middle school says this "Middle school students are at the perfect age to discover and explore the arts of theater". I got on enternet and found a video on Mr. Nason he put many examples and things out there to prove that this class is important it help people to get jobs and to show there selfs and even to come out of there shells and that's very important. 1.) Summarizes or Copies materials; May or may not present a claim. Students actually want to be in this class so that they can show there <sup>their</sup> ~~there~~ <sup>feel</sup> emotions and how they fill about things. There is profe on Mr. Nassons videos that kids want to be in these classes. In the passage of it all starts in middle school it says this "Start choosing materials that help you give them a sense of how they are becoming, that helps them with there maturity changes."
