

Explain "things like that"
Saying those words and being that violent?
What happens if they do this at school?

Though some video games help hand-eye coordination, it can also cause eye problems for staring at the screen too long. Even though it can cause eye problems you could set a time limit. When you set a time limit it sure doesn't stop kids from sneaking and playing all night. Parents could take their electronics away at night. Parents trust their kids enough to be responsible and respect the rules.

Even though parents do trust their kids perhaps you committed a random act of violence. I'm not saying you can't play video games, but what I am saying is to be smart about it. Don't let these games ruin your life. Go out and have fun. I agree. We all sometimes need a way to wind down and those games help, but make sure you don't become addicted. Next time your parents call you down to do your homework, you might want to take a second and think, "Do I want to become lazy and unhealthy or do I want to become an educated,
